

Axarquía's routes, Andalusia Tourist Interest Declared

(Decree 251/2005)

Mudejar Route

ARENAS · ÁRCHEZ · CANILLAS DE ACEITUNO
SALARES · SEDELLA

Arab Roots of Axarquía are evident in these five small inland villages dotted with minarets, arcades and other details that give this route a charming spell.

Travelers, visiting the mere 40 km that make up this path, will come across with five small towns that still retain the most representative examples of Mudejar architecture in the area. Arena, Árchez, Salares, Sedella and Canillas de Aceituno are authentic Mudejar villages that leave the visitor the feeling of having gone back in time.

The Christian conquest of the Axarquía did not occur until 1487. The term "Mudejar", which comes from the word "mudayya" applies to the Hispanic non-Muslims who remained under the new Castilian state preserving their religion, language and legal organizations after the Christian conquest.

The use of brick, glazed ceramics, ornate plasterwork and coated exteriors are considered Mudejar features. The materials employed in its construction were poor but quite useful, since they allowed the buildings to be erected quickly and sparingly.

The Muslim influence in Mudejar art is not only found in ornamentation but also in architectural structures, such as "La Casa Reina Mora o del Diezmo" in Canillas de Aceituno y "La Casa Torreón" in Sedella, being a part of the civil mudejar patrimony, as well as the bell towers, overhead fixtures and wooden roofs used to cover the top of the churches. Highlights on the route are Alminar y el Puente de Salares, la Torre de Árchez, Daimalos (Arenas) y Sedella. The culture in the area is so important that Salares has a party called Festival Árabe Andalusi.

This is an area of great environmental importance because of its proximity to a Natural Park. In it we can highlight the routes that from Canillas de Aceituno reach La Maroma at 2,069 m. altitude.

In this route we include the route of the Saltlito and suspension bridge in the town of Canillas de Aceituno.

The Sun and Avocado Route

MACHARAVIAYA · IZNATE · BENAMOCARRA · BENAMARGOSA
RINCÓN DE LA VICTORIA · VÉLEZ · MÁLAGA

The light of this magical route full of wealth and illustrious history surrounds us during the tour as you travel through its beautiful villages, long shores and fertile inland fields.

From the beaches of Rincon de la Victoria, Axarquía's door, to the subtropical fields of Benamargosa, there are 75 kilometers inviting one to meet the six municipalities that compose the closest route to Málaga. The area is comprised of the towns Rincon de la Victoria, Macharaviaya, Vélez - Málaga, Benamocarra, Iznate y Benamargosa.

The subtropical fruits, along with the magnificent sun can be enjoyed on its shores, the thread of a path that leaves no one indifferent. Mangos, papayas, custard apples and especially avocados, live in perfect harmony with the traditional crops of the Axarquía. This agricultural diversity is due to the exceptional microclimate created by the mountains of the Tejeda, Almijara and Alhama Natural Park.

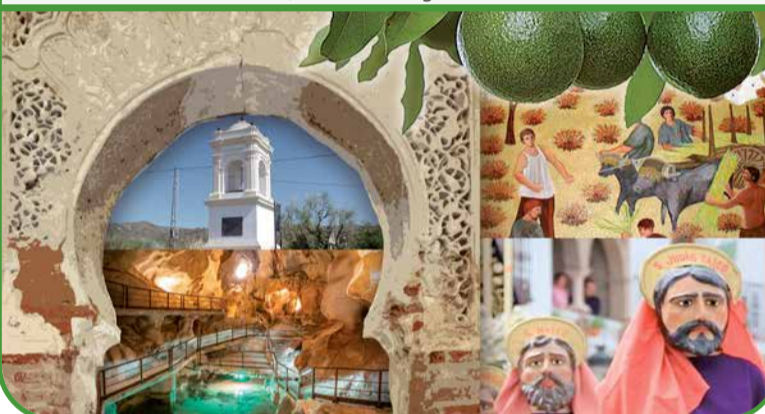

History has a prominent role on this route, especially for the one that stands in the town of Vélez - Málaga, the capital of the Axarquía. Not only does it manifest itself its history and people, but also it does so also in its geography, which is highlighted by its splendid central meadow. This is the starting point for most of the roads and paths that invites one to feel the given experience provided by the variety of places in the Axarquía.

Highlight in the area around Triana is the Buddhist Centre and the Kalachakra Stupa which according to tradition is a symbol for peace, prosperity and protection.

Illustrious personalities left their mark on the people of the Ruta del Sol and Avocado. The poet Salvador Rueda, musician Eduardo Ocoñ and philosopher essayist María Zambrano were born in this land that also was home to the family of the Gálvez, the true patrons of Macharaviaya. Important heritage that Cueva del Tesoro offers in Rincon de la Victoria: the unique and only cave of marine origin that can be visited in Europe, the murals by Evaristo Guerra at the Hermitage of El cerro in Vélez - Málaga, land of great artists.

Another emblematic character is Miguel de Cervantes. In his most significant work "Don Quijote de la Mancha", he mentions the city of Vélez - Málaga. It also is important to highlight the Cruces de Mayo and Legado de Reyes and Semana Santa of Vélez - Málaga.

Noteworthy are the unique festivals of The Day of the Music (Dia de la Música) in Benamocarra, The Day of the Countryside (Dia del Campo) in Benamargosa, the Victorian Anchoy (Boquerón Victoriano) festival in Rincon de la Victoria and Moscatel Grape Day (Dia de la Uva Moscatel) in Iznate, the Living Nativity Scene (Belén Viviente) of Almayate and the Maritime Terrestrial Procession (Procesion Maritima Terrestre) of the Virgen del Carmen in Torre del Mar, Vélez - Málaga.

The Route of Sun and Wine

ALGARROBO - SAYALONGA - CÓMPETA
CANILLAS DE ALBAIDA - FRIGILIANA - NERJA - TORROX

Along with a beautiful coastline of beaches dotted with cliffs and coves vineyards hills appear with white Andalusia farmhouses where muscatel has been made since Roman times.

This route combines the best of the coast and the interior, mixing busy tourism and peaceful rural areas.

This proximity to the beach captures the qualities of Sun and Wine Route. Both show the duality that expresses in all its cultural aspects by itself. Along the coast and up to the border with Granada, in the eastern part of the Axarquía, are the municipalities of Algarrobo, Sayalonga, Cómpeeta, Canillas de Albaida, Torrox, Nerja y Frigiliana.

The winemaking process, despite years of advancement in technology, is still traditional. Grapes are left under the sun before crushed. Then the chosen juices are stored in barrels. Wine production, despite being characteristic of all the Axarquía and especially of this route, stands out in the village of Cómpeeta. The people who dedicate these wines the famous Noche del Vino do not do it in vain. Another typical fruit in this area is the loquat. Sayalonga each year dedicates a festival to this precious product, which can be served in various ways. On the other hand, Algarrobo, with its interior and coastline, its Phoenician vestiges (Necropolis of Trayamar) in addition to the Fiesta de Quema of Algarrobo and Arabes (Watchtowers of Algarrobo Costa), and its famous crisp aniseed fried in oil cake called "Torta de Algarrobo" thus identifying the town that gives its name to this spectacular route.

In Nerja, a special mention goes to the famous Cueva de Nerja "Cathedral of the Paleolithic". It offers a unique spectacle, and the views of the Mediterranean Sea from the so-called Balcón de Europa, the Balcony of Europe. Near there we can enjoy a dreamlike landscape environment in the Maro-Cerro Gordo Cliffs, and its natural setting. It is worth highlighting the Carnival of Nerja and the Belen Viviente from the neighborhood of Protegidas.

Sugar cane mill like the one of Frigiliana that produces cane honey, some unique cemeteries (Sayalonga), and many excellent restaurants and beach bars along the coast, the Roman vestiges (Torrox), the Fiesta de las Migas, and the walking trails through imposing mountain ranges (Canillas de Albaida and Nerja); all this completes the varied routes that give a wide representation of what Axarquía can offer.

Oil and Mountains Route

COLMENAR - RIOGORDO - ALFARNATEJO - PERIANA
ALCAUCÍN - LA VIÑUELA - ALFARNATE

Some spectacular landscape changes, a reservoir surrounded by mountains, and beautiful mountain villages perched above the Mediterranean.

Among the exuberant beauty of the mountains that crown the Axarquía, the towns of Riogordo, Colmenar, Alfarnate, Alfarnatejo, Periana, Alcaucin and La Viñuela offer a route with a strong personality, casting a unique landscape of mountains, with the green of olive trees and pastures, to villages easily accessible from Malaga via the A-45 motorway or, already in the Axarquía, by the A-356 arc road.

Remains of large wheels and huge jar are testimony to the antiquity of olive oil cultivation, the protagonist of the traditional, delicious and healthy Mediterranean cuisine. Olive Trees "Nevadillo and Verdial" are the origin of the best oil in the world and are produced in traditional mill in a totally natural way. Having a fruity flavor and being very sweet and palatable characterize this oil.

The enjoy all the culture that surrounds this liquid gold, this route offers a possibility: you can attend the olive harvest, which begins in December.

Gastronomy is one of the strengths of this route. Along with olive oil, you can taste the sausages and cured meats and homemade goat cheese in Colmenar, the famous peaches from Periana; roman bread in Alcaucin, snails and oil bread in Riogordo, the "gazpacho" in Alfarnatejo and the cherries and "roscos carteros" in Alfarnate.

But gastronomy is not the only interesting thing on the route of the oil and the mountains. The Viñuela reservoir is developing and increasingly popular activity in rural and active tourism, being the camp area of Alcazar, near Alcaucin, in the Sierra Tejeda one of the most popular and demanded zone for those who are looking for direct contact with the countryside and nature. The Holy During Week of Easter (Semana Santa), in Riogordo we can enjoy the "El Paso de Riogordo".

Archaeological remains, legends of bandits, folk traditions and a deep calm and tranquility complete the romantic setting, which this route offers.

The Route of the Raisins

COMARES - CÚTAR - EL BORGE - ALMÁCHAR
MOCLINEJO - TOTALÁN

There are legends of bandits, splendid views and charming small towns where as far back as from the time of the Arab presence a raisin from the Muscatel grape, considered the best of the world.

Totalán, Comares, Cútar, El Borge, Almáchar and Moclinejo are among the localities inside the 62 mile route where the special weather conditions allow vineyards to flourish later on become raisins. The drying of raisins, which are always facing southeast, develops this ancestral craft, whose lord is the sun. Settled on the hills and craggy landscape of Axarquía, the artisan of this fruit is noteworthy. To honor it there are several festivities such as the "Festival Almáchar Ajoblanco", the "Viñeros en Moclinejo" or "Pasa de El Borge and La Viñuela".

From this area comes the famous and well-appreciated handcrafted sweet wine Muscatel. This wine has a distinctive floral scent, which this grape variety has, due to the organoleptic characteristics of the area where it comes from (Moscatel de Alejandria). Thanks to the climate and soil characteristics it has been adapted perfectly to this area and the wine can be tasted at wineries such as Almáchar and Moclinejo.

When referring to folklore it is mandatory mention the Verdiales of Comares, which differ from the other two styles (Montes and Almogía) for their faster rhythm of execution. The Comares verdiales show a more than accredited quality in each of their performances and are a benchmark for the Axarquía region. These festivals take us to another age, like the Monfi festival in Cútar, where the Andalusian culture is the focus, and attendees are invited to participate wearing traditional clothing of that period.

The geographical features that surround these villages provided shelter for bandits as "El bizco del Borge", one of the most famous outlaws of the area. Just he did, visitors are encouraged to travel along this route, with a supply of raisins in hand, to discover the picturesque and charming villages of Arab origin, which make it up.

On the other hand, in the town of Comares, climbing enthusiasts have the opportunity to do this sport through the numerous routes and via ferrata put to us. There is also a 436-meter zip line that allows you to enjoy the wonderful views of the area.
